Week Thirty-two

Day 146

- Chapel Day Attendance procedures
Today two different teachers told Mrs. McKinley they had a student absent as they passed the school office after chapel, but by the time they arrived at the room, the student had appeared. Unfortunately, this was not before the office had already called home and alarmed the parents, both of whom believed they had safely delivered their children to school this morning. As I have often said the single most important thing we do is supervision; please be in chapel on time, know which students are present, and keep an eye on your class all the way across the street. Thank you!
- Lunch Lists
Counter to the solution proposed at Monday's faculty meeting, it now appears that Albert can supply us with the master lunch selection list at the window just as the students arrive at the lunch area. Therefore, teachers need no longer be concerned about sending a copy (or copies) of the lunch selection list to the lunch area with the students. It is also not necessary for the teacher to read the list in the classroom. In the case of today's lunch, one of the shocking revelations was that several students could be told they were supposed to get a particular item, and the student would then admit to not being able to distinguish a taquito from a quesadilla.
- Golf Thank You Notes
It is very important that the golfers who represented your class in the Golf Marathon receive some handwritten note from one or more students in your class. If you have seen to this already, we thank you. If not, please take care of it as soon as possible. I will probably ask about it at next Monday's faculty meeting.

Read not to contradict and confute; nor to believe and take for granted; nor to find talk and discourse; but to weigh and consider. Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested...
